PLACER-GOLD EXCITEMENT!

Rainy River Farmer While Digging a Well Discovers Gold Deposits.

Word has been received in town that Mr. Isherwood, a farmer living just this side of Fort Frances, on the Canadian side of the river, while digging a well a few days ago came across a deposit of dark colored sand, which when washed turned out to be highly charged with coarse gold dust.

Describing the deposit and manner of its discovery to Mr. A. M. Hay, of the Dominion Gold Mining and Reduction company. Mr. Isherwood said:

"I was digging a well on my farm not thinking of anything except a speedy accomplishment of the task, when my shovel slipped with a grating sound into a small pocket of bluish sand. I took no notice of the occurrence at first, and proceeded with my digging as I got into clay again, but had not proceeded far when I encountered another pocket larger than the first, and my curiosity now being aroused I shoveled the sand into a gunny sack and again proceeded with my work. I finally struck several of these pockets and I threw the sand on one side, and when I got to the surface I improvised a rude pan and washed the sand, when to my surprise I found one of the pockets to contain about 1/2 gold. All the sand I have tried in the pan gives similar results."

Mr. Hay inspected samples of the placer dirt and he says it is undoubtedly most remarkably rich.

The farmer, living in Mr. Isher-wood's vicinity, are greatly excited over the find, many of them having already started sinking pits on their homesteads.

LAKE OF THE WOODS PROTESTED

A protest against the election of Mayor Cameron to the legislative assembly was filed this morning, the papers being sent up here by Mr.
Heston of Toronto. The protest was signed by Messrs. Hunter C.
W. Beltra and E. A. Sharpe.

Mr. Holtz says a quick trip can be made to Ingolf naming claims by those desirous of winning such operation. The visitor may take company is considered one of the very best Stock organizations in America, and received the very highest praise from the entire press of Winnipeg on their first appearance in Winnipeg some three weeks ago.

Manager Walker was so pleased with their performances that he at once engaged them to return to the Winnipeg Theatre for a summer run opening on July 3rd, and playing the entire summer season. During the Exhibition week there will be a change of play at each performance.

The Koochiching Dam.

A Minneapolis paper says congress has granted the Koochiching Dam and Water Power company, which is partly composed of Minneapolis business men, five years additional time in which to build its dam across the Rainy river at Koochiching. This enterprise was projected several years ago when the Koochiching company bought the necessary land and riparian rights on the American side of the river. Since that time negotiations have been pending with the Ontario government for the riparian rights on the Canadian side.
It is understood that the Canadian railroad influence has been instrumental in delaying the work. The Koochiching company plans the development of the immense water power at that point by building a dam 1,100 feet long. This would ensure a power equal to almost any water power in the United States, with the possible exception of that at the Soo. It would be especially valuable in developing the pulp and paper industry on the Rainy river.
The promoters of the enterprise naturally feel that they should be given the opportunity to acquire the rights on the Canadian side in return for the development work.

The passengers on a street car between Port Arthur and Fort William Saturday afternoon last witnessed an interesting race. Two large moose which had been feeding along the track, were startled by the appearance of the car, and took the track for it, being just in front of the car. The moose went as far as Hay street where they took the road and made to the hill.

SENDING POWER TO MINES

City could Transmit Electric Energy to Lake of the Woods Mines.

The question has often been asked:
Is it possible to transmit power from here to the mines? It is not only possible, but such an undertaking would be attended with but trifling difficulties if we are to judge by what has been accomplished in countries having physical features similar to this. The Missouri River Power Company send electric energy over sixty-five miles of country to Butte, Mont. Among the consumers that are supplied at Butte are the Colorado copper smelter, Butte and Boston smelter and mines, Anaconda mines, the Boston and Montana mine, Senator W. A. Clark's mines, and several others. In Helena 1000 horse power is being used by the street car lines, electric power plants, the big smelter of the American Smelting and Refining company, the Helena and Livingston Mining and Reduction company, and the large new gold mill of the Big Indian Gold Mining company.

The system of the Missouri River Power company includes two complete lines on parallel poles, each having three large cables of copper.
Nearly 1,000,000 pounds of copper wire is strung on the 7,000 poles covering the 65 miles. These cables are carried on heavy glass insulators, nine inches in diameter, and made in two pieces—a special design of the chief engineer, Mr. J. Gerry, Jr., of the Missouri River Power company.
The actual horse power delivered at Butte is 8,000, and the estimated percentage of loss at full load will not exceed 7 per cent, a very low estimate under the circumstances.
The current is carried at a voltage of 50,000.

Better Come Back Here.

A despatch from Tacoma to the Duluth Herald describes a visit of Messrs. Hubbell and Merritt, two Seine river, mine promoters, who have been drawn out to the coast by rosy reports of rich claims. The despatch says: "Messrs. Tom Merritt and A. C. Hubbell, of Duluth, spent a couple of days in Tacoma last week en route from California to Duluth. While here they were the guests of Fred Merritt, formerly of Duluth, but now in business here.
Messrs. Hubbell and Merritt visited a quartz gold proposition in Shasta county, California, which they had been led to believe was a good thing.
They were disappointed only in the degree of goodness of the thing. As says that had been made on ore from the property before they left Duluth went way up in the air from $15 to $55 the ton. The best that was shown by the expert they employed on the ground was about 68c the ton. It is needless to say they did not take the mine."

A protest against the election of Mayor Cameron to the legislative assembly was filed this morning, the papers being sent up here by Mr. Bristol, of Toronto. The protest was signed by Messrs. Hunter, C. W. Belyea and E. A. Sharpe.

Mr. Holtz says a quick trip can be made to Ingolf mining claims by those desirous of witnessing such operations. The visitor may take breakfast in town, catch the train leaving at ten minutes to eight, arrive at Ingolf at ten, and remain there until four o'clock in the afternoon, and then catch the eastbound express, which arrives in town in time for supper.

Rainy River heads the list with peculiar gunning accidents. A big St. Bernard dog owned by an employee of the Rat Portage Lumber company shot and instantly killed himself with a rifle on Thursday. It appears that some of the clerks of the company mentioned had been indulging in target practice, and had left the rifle cocked and loaded on the floor. The canine happened along bent on suicide or amusement, took the rifle by the muzzle in his mouth and started off. It was another case of didn't know it was loaded, and he got the bullet through the head, killing him instantly.

LIVE STOCK MEN IN FAVOR.

A Accommodation Given Stock Exhibitors - Americans Coming.

The work of getting the grounds and buildings of the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition in shape for the big Fair July 21-25, is progressing most favorably, and long before opening day most of the important changes will have been made. The management announced today that more attention will be paid this year to the requirements of live stock exhibitors. Each stable will be provided with two stalls for feed and storage purposes, and accommodation has been arranged in each stable for men who find it necessary to remain always with their stock. Great interest is being manifested by live stock breeders across the border in the big cattle show in connection with the Industrial, and fancy cattle and horses will be brought in from several states. The large prizes offered has no doubt started this interest.

The speeding events, particularly the free-for-all, which is for a purse of $3,500, has also awakened interest in American sporting circles and a number of horses from the other side will be entered for the most important events.

While the exhibition management is very modest in regard to the great scope of the Fair, this year, enough has been given out in regard to it to convince the most conservative that it will eclipse all former exhibitions, both in the attractions and in the amount of money expended.

The special attractions are sufficiently sensational and original to attract thousands who would probably not visit the Fair for the ordinary displays and exhibits. The management has secured the Jats Oriental, Carnival, Circus and Menagerie Co., which includes one of the best and most completely trained animal shows on the continent. Jabor will bring to Winnipeg ten separate and distinct shows, under a spread of canvas 325x625 feet. The fireworks this season will prove to be the best spectacular production ever offered patrons of the Fair.

The burning of Moscow will be graphically shown, and the management has gone to large expense to have it perfect in every detail.

The Sisters of St. Joseph's Academy beg to tender most sincere thanks to their devoted friends, not only to those belonging to their own church, but to all who so generously contributed toward the handsome offering presented as a parting gift on Thursday evening. It is with the deepest regret they are leaving this mission where for ten years they have ever found sincere friends who have been always willing to lend their kind services. Now a new field of labor is opening for them, but wherever duty calls, each member of the community will take with her a most grateful and pleasing remembrance of their stay in Rat Portage.

The Trouble With the Cake

When a cake contains too much flour it is baked too fast, it will sink from the edges or rise up sharply with a crack in the middle. If cake has a coarse grain, it was not beaten enough or the oven was too slow.

Some men owe all they have in this world to others and some owe a lot more than they have.

REDUCED COST OF GOLD MINING.

The improved method of mining and milling adopted by the company owning the Teardrop mine on Douglas Island, Alaska, which reduces the cost from $1.10 to the per ton means a great saving in the operation of the 350 stamps, which the company owns. At the ore averages less than $2 per ton, the new process means not only a cut of nearly 50% on the expense of mill and mill operation, but brings within the field of profit a reduction of a vast amount of capital which under former conditions would be classed as virtually barren and worthless.

Manager McMillan of the Mikado, has been attending to the cost of mining and mill in this country until it would appear that he is on rock bottom now. It is his opinion, however, that Mr. McMillan has made his records by purely executive genius, so that for other mines to avail themselves of the Mikado's improved method would be necessary for them to have the Mikado's manager as a model.

Mr. McMillan is almost certainly the fact that the chief of executive genius has been mentioned by exceptional ability. What then must be at what goal must we strive for we would emulate the Mikado's success?

First—We must be working any grade proposition, or even thirty star they have not been a success in the sense of the term that capitalizing venture have not paid dividend.

glutinating; each other would most effectually illustrate the state of our feelings.

At Aux-la-Chapelle, Kaiser Bill made a strong address on the necessity of religion, and a Krefeld on the same day pointed out the advantages of a strong army and navy. Emperor William is certainly versatile if not inconsistent.

If the Ministry the King were not so, he would receive a "calling down" from certain quarters for giving a collection of the males in the hall million London's poor a mug of beer and a package of cigarettes at the coronation feast.

CONQUERORS ARE AT RIGHT.

Domestic soldiers have earned and secured much glory as participants on behalf of England in the South African war. Wherever placed they have met the highest requirements of duty, and in actual combat displayed the "aspens" bravery that distinguishes the dominant race. Even the Mother Country admits that the most efficient soldiery Europe in this struggle, among our neighbors, who rendered aid at the beginning, and it came forward with the eagles of the South African war. Some of the men have disgraced themselves, but in all the men from the ideal soldier example of this is shown in the neighborhood of the River. In the second of a whole day, the scope in the thick of the beginning to the end of these gallant soldiers possible position number was killed or wounded. Not while there was a need among them was the resistance thought of in the history-making of the animals of war cut from the annals of the past.

the sense of the people of the Province is as favorable as when the Confederation with union in New York.

it is difficult to say of the people would probably to divide the matter.

But it must not be forgotten that the idea of Maritime union was voted prior to that of Confederation and it seems likely in the light of history that it would have been accepted if the larger union had not been at that time.

At that time, if we mistake not, Nova Scotia were waiting to go to the aid of the people who were in the direction. Whether a large Confederation is now a problem.

Further back into history the original Government of the country included the three provinces, which were known as the Maritime Provinces. The name of Atlantic was a combination of the three then called the three provinces.

THE KING'S GUARDIAN.

Melville, Special Guardian of Royalty, is Responsible for Safety of King Edward VII.—A New Time.

Melville, special guardian of royalty, special Nemesis of anarchists and all sorts of plotters against the state, has had a lively time of it since President McKinley was shot. Melville was in Homburg with the King of England when the fatal bullet was fired, and he went soon afterward with His Majesty to Denmark, and that was a good place for him to be, for the extraordinary collection of royalty gathered at the palace of the King's aged father-in-law at that time was badly frightened by the news, and Melville was the man to reassure them.

He did it so well, in fact, that King Christian decorated him with the Order of the Danebrog. The detective had a lot to do at home, but when the King decided to go to the continent, he particularly insisted that Melville in person should go with him, and so "the special and political department of the criminal investigation department at Scotland Yard" had to get along as best it could without its famous chief.

That department with the long name is used to the chief's absence, however, for the King rarely makes any important journey without taking his special protector along, usually in the same compartment of his train or in the adjoining state-room of his steamer. The detective was an ordinary policeman not long ago, and never had much schooling, but he is good looking, quick-witted, fits the clothes that one of the most fashionable of London tailors makes for him, has a beautiful touch of Irish brogue, and is an entertaining companion.

As a result the King rather enjoys his guardian's society, and many are the games of cards they have played together when there was nothing better to do on a long journey. At Homburg and at Fredensberg it is said that the King was never out of Melville's sight, except in the moments of relaxation, when one of the chief's three assistants took up the watch. At the family gathering at King Christian's palace this remarkable Irishman was among personal acquaintances to nearly every one of whom at one time or another he had been personally introduced and for whose safety he had been personally responsible, as each important royalty who visits England is usually placed under Melville's guard from the moment of getting to the English soil.

Besides the King and Queen of England there were the Queen of the Czechs, the Queen of Denmark, three twenty-two as the top of the minds of the King's three assistants.

TRADE OR PROFESSION.

The Chances of Success in Life Lie Often in the Last Who Chooses the First Mentioned.

When the ordinary Canadian citizen keeps a small shop or works for good pay, begins to thrive, his ambition at once lays plans for giving Harry, his son, a better education than the father had. Retail merchandising or his father's handicraft is not good enough for Harry. That young man must soar high and honor the paternal name by becoming Somebody and amounting to Something. Mother reminds father that she was the original discoverer that the lad had brains. Harry learned to talk, unintelligently, it is true, at a phenomenally early period of his career, and the conformation of his skull is identical with those of Aristotle and Dacot, as pictured in the phrenological advertisements. True, Harry is only tenth in his class, but mother is sure that the teacher cheats for favorites and keeps him down. Besides, Napoleon was not a brilliant student at school, and the Duke of Wellington was nearer the foot than the top of his class. Harry, then, is sent through the high school and the university, where he becomes proficient in football and is educated far beyond his depth, and with his sheepskin in one hand he registers for the study of law or medicine. It is nearly 27 years old when his father and mother go to the new office and help him to get started. Harry puts out his shingle and starts in to wait for clients or patients.

His subsequent career depends a great deal on luck and personal energy. With moderate and fortune Harry, at the end of six years, will be earning enough to live on. If he really has brains, persistence and energy, Harry may become prosperous in late middle age, when he can marry and aspire to attain some eminence for himself and social distinction for his wife. Unless he has an exceptional talent this is about as bright a prospect as Harry has. Of course, father sometimes has day dreams about what would happen if Harry were to become Premier or even Governor-General, but Harry's chance of attaining either of those dignities is not seriously calculated even by father. On the other hand, poor Harry may not succeed at all, but may pass his life, as many professional men do, living from hand to mouth, always in debt, and compelled by pride to dwell on a social plane beyond his means.

Now, that Harry been taken from school at the age of 17 and been apprenticed to a good trade, what would his career have been? At the age of 22, he would be master of his craft and capable of earning a wage equal to the income of the majority of young lawyers of 28. His industry would have raised him the shop and in the meantime, perhaps, have a warehouse or two of his own, the profits of which in all likelihood, would far exceed the income that Harry, the lawyer, would receive. Harry, the lawyer, would have to wait for a client, and Harry, the tradesman, would have to wait for a customer. Harry, the lawyer, would have to wait for a client, and Harry, the tradesman, would have to wait for a customer.

At a tradesman in Harry's line would have a hard working day and plenty of leisure, which as a tradesman he would have to wait for a customer. Harry, the lawyer, would have to wait for a client, and Harry, the tradesman, would have to wait for a customer.

A BOY'S LOCKER.

It is Quite Easy to Make and Handy
For Storing Things.

A place to put everything must precede the putting of everything in its place. How can a boy be expected to be orderly unless he has some place where his ball and bats, his rackets and his fishing lines, to say nothing of half a hundred other things dear to his heart, can be safely stored?

One of the good things about a locker is the fact that the boy himself can make it. Some plain boards are nailed together to receive the drawers that are simply a nice quality of empty grocery boxes. The dimensions cannot be given here, because the dimensions will depend upon the size of the boxes that can be had. To secure drawers that are broader than their height it may be necessary to secure boxes of the right size in length and breadth, then to cut off a piece of the top, making the height of the bottom part that is left just right to go into its compartment.

The locker we have in mind calls for several sizes of boxes. It will be well to get the boxes together before making the framework of boards that is to hold them, then plans can be made according to the sizes that are at hand.
It must be noted that all the boxes must be of the same size from front to rear, while four may be of the same width; one opening may be left for a closet, a door simply being hinged into the opening. The door is made of strips of board, with two cleats across the back, to which the strips are nailed.

The locker when completed is supported against the wall by a pair of stout brackets, to be had at the hardware store, where knobs for the drawers and a catch for the closet door can also be obtained for a few cents.

In a Bad Way.

This pudgy bundle of fat boy grew nearly as broad as he is long by constant stuffing. He was eating all the time while his eyes were open, and he

BADLY FUZZY

dreaded he was eating when he was asleep. Let him be a warning to you.
You can't see what a bad way he is in by the following complaint which he made after one of his usual raids on the pantry:

"I'm so fat I can't tell which is throat and which is stomach, so I don't know whether I've got a sore throat or the stomach ache."—Chicago Record.

BEDSTEAD DRAPERIES.

A Tasteful Device Which Does Not Interfere With Ventilation.

The prejudice against the drapery of bedsteads caused by the old fashioned "four poster" is now disappearing in favor of a light and tasteful style which causes in no way discomfort to the sleeper. This drapery may be arranged in such a way that it will not interfere in the least with the free cir-

HOW THE DRAPERY IS ARRANGED.

ulation of air in the bedroom, and for the purpose of illustration we select an ordinary metal bedstead.

For the successful carrying out of the design a round piece of wood five inches in diameter and two inches thick is required.

In the center of this a hole must be bored through large enough to take a round piece of wood of a length to suit the width of the drapery to be used. A portion of an ordinary broom handle will answer the purpose. This is fixed to the wall by four nails at the desired height above the head of the bed. It would be as well if the holes for the nails were bored in the wood first. The drapery is thrown over this and looped back to the wall as depicted. This is an extremely simple and effective drapery and can be made in almost any light material.

Making an Omelet.

A frequent cause of failure in making omelets is in the use of too many eggs at a time. Four eggs make an omelet easy to handle. If more are needed, it is better to make a second or even a third one.

To make a plain omelet beat the eggs thoroughly, not separating whites and yolks. Add a tablespoonful of milk and a saltspoonful of salt for every egg.
Put a teaspoonful of butter on the end of a knife (a palette knife is best, but a case knife will do) and oil the omelet pan thoroughly on bottom and sides.
Turn in the egg mixture and keep the pan in motion on a hot part of the stove so that one part will not cook faster than another. When the eggs have become sufficiently firm on the bottom of the pan, run the knife carefully under and loosen the omelet so that it will easily slide to and fro. Then cover for a minute or two and raise the pan a trifle from the stove, so that the bottom will not scorch while the top is "settling." Slide the knife under, fold the omelet over and serve at once.
